Texas Cotton Acreage Law Attacked

LEGALITY UNDER FIRE; STATE ASKS FOR INJUNCTION

Allege Defendant Plans to Plant Over 30 Per Cent Cotton

HEARINGS ATTRACTS CROWDS OF FARMERS

Attorneys Spend Afternoon Arguing On Demurrers To Proceedings

FRANKLIN, Texas, Jan. 20. (AP) —Constitutionality of the Texas cotton acreage reduction law was attacked in district court here on Wednesday.

Virtually all the afternoon was occupied by attorneys on demurrers to injunction proceedings brought by the state against Fred L. Smith, a farmer of Calvert.

County Attorney T. L. Tyson of Franklin sought the injunction on grounds that Smith planned to plant more than the 20 per cent of last year's acreage allowed by the law.

The hearing was before Judge W. C. Davis of the 85th district court and was attended by crowds of farmers, ginners and others who jammed the court room.

Arguing for Smith were W. E. Terrell of Waco, J. Felton Lane of Abilene, and R. E. L. Knight of Dallas. Assisting Tyson was C. L. Matthews of Franklin.

The basis of the attack on the law was contained in several demurrers to the petition for injunction.

BEVERLEY WILL REPLACE DAVIS IN PORTO RICO

Succeeds Theodore Roosevelt, New Governor General of Philippines

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (AP) — Slowly filling a list of major vacancies, President Hoover Wednesday named the 37-year old attorney of Porto Rico, James R. Beverley, to be governor general of the island.

Comparatively young for so important a post, Beverley will succeed the only slightly older Theodore Roosevelt, whose strong indorsement he carries. Roosevelt, now in the capital, will sail shortly to be governor-general of the Philippines.

Problem Not Solved

Despite the fact that he has named four men to as many major posts since Tuesday, the president Wednesday night found his appointment problem far from solved. He is finding some difficulty in the selection of a man for the supreme court seat suddenly left vacant a week ago by Oliver Wendell Holmes. White House officials said Wednesday an appointment for this high post was not in immediate prospect.

Within a short time seven suggestions of new names for the court were placed before the chief executive for his consideration. More than a score of others already had been laid before him.

Orie L. Phillips, 46-year old Federal court judge of Albuquerque, N. M., continues to be mentioned often for this place should Mr. Hoover turn to that part of the nation for his choice. Each section, however, apparently is championing one of its own.

WIFE OF LOUISIANA'S GOVERNOR-APPARENT IS A NATIVE RESIDENT OF LAMAR COUNTY

A Lamar county girl is destined to preside as mistress of the Louisiana governor's mansion—unless the fates take a highly improbable turn and Senator-elect Huey P. Long's chosen successor for the governorship is defeated in the November election.

Mrs. O. K. Allen, wife of the Democratic nominee-apparent to succeed Long, the most colorful and picturesque figure in American politics today, was Florence Love, youngest of the thirteen children of the late Ben F. Love of the Hopewell community, six miles northwest of Paris.

It was at Hopewell that the man now marked for the governorship of Louisiana met his bride. Lake Gibbons, the old city reservoir, near the Hopewell community, had been completed some time, but some additional construction work was under way and Allen, then a civil engineer, was among the men employed on the job.

And this is the story Hopewell folks tell of how it happened: a neighborhood party was planned, and a group of the young people went out to the construction crew's camp to find one of the young men they knew and invite him to attend. Hearing them make inquiries and tell their errand, Allen put his head out of his tent and called, "I'll be there, girls!"

Whether it started at the party or not, it was a whirlwind courtship and a short time later, when the work was completed and Allen moved on to new fields, Florence Love went with him as his bride.

His subsequent career, his rise to the chairmanship of the Louisiana state highway commission, and his designation by Long as his favored candidate for the governorship, are all now a matter of

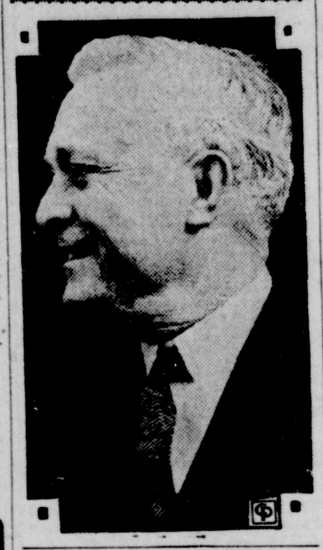

By an overwhelming majority, 41,408 in New Orleans alone according to Wednesday's tabulations in the election, Allen is apparently destined to succeed the fiery and high-handed Long as chief executive of Louisiana.

Mrs. Allen was born and reared at Hopewell, the youngest child by the second marriage of her father who was a member of a pioneer Lamar county family and among the first to settle in the section northwest of the city.

Well In Lead

Based on returns from 963 precincts out of 1,441 in the state of Louisiana, O. K. Allen, Senator-elect Huey Long's candidate, held a majority of 54,693 over his combined opposition. The majority represented 41,408 from the city of New Orleans.

RUTH JUDD WILL BEGIN FIGHT FOR LIFE IN EARNEST

Phantom Co - Defendant Awaits Possible Materialization By Witnesses

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 20, (AP)— Slender Winnie Ruth Judd, once-confessed slayer, will begin in earnest Thursday the battle for her life, with a phantom co-defendant awaiting possible materialization when the horde of witnesses begin their parade to the witness stand.

Whether this ghost of a three months old murder investigation, brought into open court Wednesday by defense counsel in questioning of prospective jurors to try Mrs. Judd for murder of Agnes Anne LeRoi, ever will be embodied in the present case will depend, it was indicated, on the trend of testimony during trial.

In addition to the present case, in which first witnesses will testify Thursday, Mrs. Judd is accused of slaying Hedvig Samuelson, tubercular convalescent friend both of herself and Mrs. LeRoi.

A jury panel of 29 and an alternate panel of four was seated, according to Arizona law, before Judge Howard S. Speakman's Maricopa county superior court adjourned Wednesday.

FLOOD WORKERS CONCENTRATE ON STRICKEN CITY

Ordinary Population Is Trebled By Heavy Influx of Refugees

GLENDORA, Miss., Jan. 20. (AP) National Red Cross workers in charge of the Mississippi delta flood zone Wednesday night concentrated their efforts toward relief of an acute situation at Crowder, a town in Quitman county. The ordinary population of Crowder has been trebled by an influx of refugees from the inundated back country.

A distress signal was sent out by Crowder Wednesday in the face of a threatened food shortage after more than 1,000 homeless from the flooded Quitman-Panola basin had crowded into the town seeking shelter and sustenance.

One Little Ad—

"You can tell the world Morning News advertising gets results and plenty of them," said B. Y. Tinnin, owner of the Famous Shoe Store, Wednesday afternoon as he gazed at a truck load of old brooms, four bushels of sweet potatoes, five bushels of Irish potatoes and four hundred eggs—all received during the day as a result of a twelve inch advertisement in Wednesday's Morning News.

The Famous is conducting a voting contest and Mr. Tinnin conceived the idea of allowing 10,000 votes for each old broom brought in Wednesday, and 5,000 votes for each potato and egg. He was frankly astonished at the response to the one small ad in The News.

"This stuff came from all over Parisarea," said Mr. Tinnin, "and I confess the results exceeded my expectations. It is proof the Morning News does get results—not only in our immediate vicinity, but all over this section."

Tuesday the Famous received 1200 voting ads from one issue of the Paris Morning News. "I have never before witnessed such interest in any effort we ever put forth as we have had in our popularity contest," Mr. Tinnin said.

ACTING GOVERNOR OF OKLAHOMA IS GIVEN 'WARNING'

Told to Withdraw Reward For Capture of "Pretty Boy" Floyd

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 20. (AP) The acting governor of Oklahoma was threatened Wednesday by an annonymous letter which apparently purported to be from Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, young machine gun desperado who is the object of an eastern Oklahoma manhunt.

"Robert Burns, acting governor —you will either withdraw that $1,000 reward at once or suffer the consequences—no kidding," said the note, mailed from Altus, in the southwestern corner of the state Tuesday afternoon. "I have robbed no one but the monied men."

After conferring with Adj. Gen. Charles F. Barrett of the national guard, who is directing the hunt for the bank robber and accused killer, Acting Governor Burns turned the note over to the postal authorities and declared he had no intention of withdrawing the state reward for Floyd's capture.

The Floyd reward which Burns started has been swelled to $4,000 now by other agencies. The desperado is wanted in Ohio for a slaying and in other states.

AMERICANS ASK DISMISSAL OF MURDER CHARGE

Attorney Says Right to Speedy Trial Has Been Prejudiced

HONOLULU, Jan. 20. (AP)—A motion asking dismissal of the police court complaint charging Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three navy men of the murder of Joseph Kahahawai was filed in circuit court Wednesday by their attorney.

Basing his motion on constitutional grounds, the attorney, Montgomery Winn, charged the right of the defendants to a speedy trial had been prejudiced and that the city and county attorney would not ask the grand jury for an indictment Thursday as originally promised.

Mrs. Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie, and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, navy enlisted men, are being held without bond in custody of naval officers at Pearl Harbor for the slaying January 8 of Kahahawai, suspected attacker of Mrs. Massie.

Winn asserted City and County Attorney James F. Gilliland would not present an indictment to the grand jury Thursday because "he is attempting to secure outside counsel to prosecute the case and in that event he does not succeed in the attempt" he will postpone action until a public prosecutor is chosen under a proposed act of the territorial legislature now in session.

Gilliland has been under fire in the recent investigations and reform movements growing out of criticism of law enforcement. The bill before the legislature would relieve him of criminal prosecutions and place that task in the hands of an assistant to the territorial attorney general.

BRITISH DECLARE LAUSANNE PARLEY MUST BE DELAYED

Announcement Raises Doubt Whether Conference Will Be Held

LONDON, Jan. 20. (AP)—The British government, bowing to the inevitable, announced Wednesday night in a foreign office statement it was "evident" the Lausanne reparations conference could not begin next Monday, as originally had been planned.

The announcement raised doubts among responsible commentators about whether the conference would be held at all, and on this point the official statement was extremely guarded.

"The conversations which have been taking place between the governments chiefly concerned with the conference at Lausanne are not yet concluded and it is evident that the conference can not be begun as early as next Monday, the date which had been provisionally arranged," the statement said.

"Further conversations are now in progress and the British government entertains the hope it may be possible to come to a satisfactory agreement as to the procedure to be adopted in the course of a few days."

STIMSON REFUSES TEXT OF MESSAGE FROM COLOMBIA

Will Supply Information If Committee Pledges Self to Secrecy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (AP) — Two senate committees received documents from the state department's confidential files Wednesday, but one asked for more and was refused.

Secretary Stimson declined to give the finance committee the full text of a telegram from the legation at Colombia, which testimony already received described as outlining the view of President Olaya of that country that a loan then pending should be extended because a valuable oil concession had been given an American firm.

The cabinet officer had given the committee a copy of the telegram with all reference to the oil concession deleted. He offered to submit the communication in full, however, if the committee would pledge itself to secrecy on its contents.

TWO BILLIONS TO BE TURNED INTO BUSINESS IN U. S.

Emerges In Definite Form After Two Days of Conferring

FINAL ENACTMENT TODAY OR FRIDAY

Prospects Are Corporation Will Begin Work Early Next Week

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (AP)— Out of a two-day conference of house and senate fiscal experts there emerged Wednesday night in definite and carefully considered form the mightiest peace-time financial institution ever reared.

"Called the "Reconstruction Finance Corporation," this giant $2,000,000,000 government credit agency is to pour its billions in loans into electric as well as steam railways, into exporting agencies, agriculture and a long list of financial institutions, including insolvent banks.

Whipped into a single voluminous bill of 18 printed pages after hours of comparing the house and senate versions, the mammoth undertaking is scheduled for final congressional enactment Thursday or Friday with prospects that the corporation will begin early next week its work designed to lead the way to better times.

Differences between house and senate were reconciled at a brisk afternoon session which followed a hurried call at the conference room by Charles G. Dawes and Eugene Meyer, already named president and chairman of the board of the institution.

Getting ready to start the corporation functioning as soon as the bill has reached the president and received his signature, General Dawes moved rapidly between white house and capital during the day, entering and leaving the former by the back door to avoid delays.

In the house a study of the closely related subject of taxes went forward before the ways and means committee, which has promised its program about February 1.

From experts sent by the treasury department to study the Canadian sales tax system the committee members heard a report that it would be a practical revenue producer for this country.

Thursday another measure of the economic program—the Glass bill to revise the national banking act and close the doors of the federal reserve system to speculation—will be sent on its way to the senate.

This measure by Senator Glass, Democrat of Virginia, was drafted after a year of study by a banking sub-committee, and its principal features have been included in the non-partisan economic program urged by President Hoover.

SAN ANGELO, Jan. 20, (AP)—W. L. Alford, farmer, was fatally shot Wednesday while hunting rabbits. His shotgun was found hanging in a fence.

LONG CANDIDATE, ALLEN, HAS LEAD OF 54,693 VOTES

Vote Ploughing Toward Grand High Total For State Election

NEW ORLEANS, Jan .20, (AP)— Governor: 963 precincts out of 1,441:

Allen, 149,818.
Le Blanc, 60,278.
Guion, 33,885.
Boone, 645.
Clark, 347.

On the basis of these figures, including complete returns from 21 of the 64 parishes, O. K. Allen held a majority of 54,693 over his combined opposition.

The Allen majority represented 41,408 from the city of New Orleans and 13,285 from the country parishes. If this ratio holds, the Allen majority will go well above the 60,000 mark in the unreported 478 precincts.

The vote was ploughing steadily toward a grand high total for a state election in the history of Louisiana, these incompleted returns totaling 244,943. Some political observers have estimated the total vote would reach 300,000, an unprecedented figure.

In Last Embrace, Couple Ride To Death In Water

SOUTH FREEPORT, Me., Jan. 20. (AP)—Clasped in each other's arms Mr. and Mrs. John Ineson, both about 68 years old, went to their death in a double suicide Wednesday as their automobile plunged into Casco bay.

A few minutes earlier the couple had mailed letters at the local postoffice to their daughter and a brother of Ineson which indicated they planned to take their lives.

They then headed the car down short, steep Wharp hill. Workmen nearby, attracted as the machine sped past them, found the top of the closed machine and the couple's hats floating on the water.

The bodies, with arms about each other, were found in the machine when it was hauled from the ten feet of water a few hours later.

Both had been ill for some time.

A letter addressed to their daughter, Mrs. Hugh Smith, of Stephenville, Texas, and opened by the authorities said:

"Daughter: Mother and I are gone. Don't come. Your uncle will take care of things.

Father."

The other letter, addressed to W. F. Ineson, of Suncock, N. H. brother of Ineson, said:

"My wife is worse through failure. Come and take charge of things. Care what you can for Frederick (Mrs. Smith).

Girl Of 10 Decides Fate Of 2,000 Actresses A Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 20. (AP)— She is only 10, but the fate of about 2,000 actresses a year hangs on whether she nods or shakes her head.

She is Gloria Wolf, a vivacious little bobbed-haired girl with serious brown eyes and a lot of positive ideas about what entertainment ought to be.

Her father is Michael Marco Wolf, known merely as Marco in Hollywood, where he is a producer. He calls her his "show eye" and if he ever is in doubt about any of the 2,500 dancers, singers, and chorus girls he signs up each year, he calls Gloria.

She is, he explained Wednesday, on their arrival from California, the "perfect audience." If a vaudeville act appeals to her, the chances are 99 out of 100, he figures, that it will "go over with a bang" when it starts touring the country.

Gloria, in the last two years, has passed judgment on hundreds of stage teams. Thousands of actors and actresses have had their future decided by the positive opinions she passed on them.

"More comedy," is Gloria's most frequent order.

"I like to laugh," she said "and I think other people do, too. Plenty of laughs is what you need if you want to succeed."

County Teachers Will Be Served Hot Lunches Saturday

DEMONSTRATION WILL BE GIVEN BY HEALTH NURSE

Paris P. T. A. Council and Civic Organizations Cooperating

Following a meeting of Lamar county teachers Saturday morning in the high school auditorium here, Miss Anna L. Roberts, district health nurse, has arranged to serve the teachers with a hot lunch, such as may be served in practically all the rural schools of this county. Miss Roberts will also explain what equipment is necessary for serving hot lunches at school.

The Parent-Teacher Association council of Paris and other civic organizations are co-operating with Miss Roberts in giving the demonstration.

The teachers' meeting which opens at 9 o'clock will include an interesting program, Mrs. Mary Jones Lindsay, county superintendent, said Wednesday. This will be the first meeting of the teachers since before the Christmas holidays. All teachers are urged to be present promptly at 9 o'clock. An interesting program has been arranged and the meeting will have to begin on time in order to finish by noon.

The matter of serving hot lunches in school will be discussed. Many schools have been serving hot lunches during the winter months. Although the benefits to the children from serving hot lunches during the colder weather can not be estimated, the cost is comparatively small. One school in this county, last year, it is reported, served hot lunches to the children throughout the school term at a total cash cost of $10. This was a one-teacher school, with a relatively small enrollment, but it gives a good example of what can be done through the co-operation of patrons and teachers. Teachers from various schools are expected to report on the cost of serving hot lunches, at the meeting Saturday.

A number of other questions regarding the work in the rural schools of the county will be discussed.

The subject of malaria control is expected to be discussed. The time is near for beginning an active campaign of malaria control, through the elimination of mosquitoes. A great number of the county schools will be studying malaria during the next few weeks, in preparation for the essay writing and poster making contest. Teachers are expected to urge pupils to use the knowledge gained from their study in working toward the elimination of mosquitoes in the various school districts of the county.

CONFIDENCE IN GOD IS SUBJECT

Dr. W. M. Wright Draws Parallel Between Present Time and Before

Prefacing his sermon Sunday morning with the following article, Dr. W. M. Wright preached Sun- day morning on "Confidence in God:"

"See if there is anything that sounds familiar in the following quotation: 'It is a gloomy moment in history. Not for many years—not in the lifetime of most men who read this paper—has there been so much grave and deep ap- prehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time. In our own country there is universal commercial prostra- tion and panic and thousands of our poorest fellow-citizens are turned out against the approach- ing winter without employment, and without the prospect of it.

"'In France the political cauld- ron seethes and bubbles with un- certainty; Russia hangs as usual, like a cloud, dark and silent upon the horizon of Europe; while all the energies, resources and influ- ences of the British Empire are sorely tried and are yet to be tried more sorely, in coping with the vast and deadly Indian insurrec- tion, and with its disturbed rela- tions in China.

"'It is a solemn moment and no man can feel an indifference in the issue of events.

"'Of our own troubles, we can see no end . . . and yet the very haste to be rich which is the oc- casion of this widespread calamity, has also tended to destroy the mor- al forces with which we are to resist and subdue the calamity.' Well, when was that written? It appeared in Harper's Weekly, Oc- tober 10, 1857 and yet it sounds strangely familiar today. This is not by a long sea-mile the worst crisis in our history."

In his sermon, Dr. Wright used Isaiah 26:3 as his text, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee," and after the introductory he said that world conditions are not radically dif- ferent from other years, and that now as in other times, faith in God is needed to save the world from desperation and man from eternal death.

"Our state of mind determines whether we are going to have peace or trouble" he said. "With the right views of God as a Father, a Benefactor, a Savior and a Source of blessings, spiritual and material, we will banish wor- ry. With this view of God, we ac- cept unquestioningly His word and believe it implicitly, finding per- fect satisfaction with divine dis- pensation. Thus is assured our perfect and permanent peace and if we accept his Fatherhood we will be characterized by perman- ent, perennial trust in Him, in sickness and in health, in pros- perity and in adversity, in life or in death in time or in eter- nity."

Foy E. Wallace, Jr., of Nash- ville, Tenn., will preach Thursday night at 7:30 at the Lamar Ave- nue Church of Christ. Mr. Wallace is formerly a Lamar county boy, having lived several years in the Moore Springs community. He was for a number of years one of the widest known, and most successful evangelists of the Church of Christ in the United States, but last year gave up active evangelistic work, and became associated with the Gospel Advocate, of Nashville, as editor. The Advocate has a wide circulation, and is one of the chief christian publications of the coun- try.

Mr. Wallace held a meeting in Paris for the Lamar Avenue church a number of years ago, and made many new friends as well as renew- ing old ones, while here, and in- vitation is extended to them for Thursday night's service.

SUIT TAKEN FROM STORE IS RECOVERED

Recovery of a third men's suit recently stolen from a local de- partment store Wednesday was re- ported by Constable J. W. T. Biard after he found the suit in posses- sion of a negro who said he paid another negro $1 for it.

The first two suits were recover- ed Sunday by Constable Biard and his deputies, John Pride and Wal- ter Hargrove. Possessors of these suits also said they bought the suits from another negro, paying $5 each for them.

The "other" negro is said to have skipped town last Saturday night. Two of the five suits sto- len about ten days ago yet are miss- ing.

STOP THOSE RUNS

Preserve the ELASTICITY* that makes stockings WEAR

DO YOU KNOW what causes those ruinous runs?

New stockings are elastic—they give under strain, stretch and then spring back again. When this precious elasticity is destroyed, the silk threads, instead of giving, break under strain. It is then that runs start!

That is why Lux is made especially to preserve the elasticity that makes even the sheerest stockings really wear.

*The Lux Way to make stockings last twice as long

Wash after EACH wearing. Perspiration left in the stocking will actually rot the silk.

Don't rub with cake soap. It destroys the elas- ticity of the silk, making it lifeless, apt to break into runs, and ill-fitting. With Lux there's no rubbing. Even stubborn spots come out perfectly if you gently press in a few dry Lux diamonds.

Don't use too-warm water—this fades color. With Lux you use lukewarm water. No hot water needed. The tiny Lux diamonds—so sheer you can actually read through them—dissolve twice as fast, even in water at wrist tempera- ture. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Wash this 2-minute way:

1. One teaspoon of Lux makes plenty of suds for each pair of stockings.
2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze gentle suds through stockings, rinse well.

MILLIONS of women find Lux in the dishpan the world's cheap- est beauty care for the hands. Costs less than 1¢ a day.

CONFESSIONS OF A FAILURE

In spite of all that the Republican leaders can do to stop it, the proposal to have President Hoover step aside and permit some other Republican to be the G. O. P. nominee this year keeps on cropping out. Ruth Hanna McCormick, former Congressman-at-large from Illinois, daughter of Senator Mark Hanna and widow of Senator Medill McCormick, and the Republican nominee for Senator in her own right in the 1930 election, voiced what is evidently a very prevalent trend of thought when she published in her newspaper at Rockford, Ill., an editorial bluntly stating the situation.

"If," runs the editorial, "a considerable number of Republicans would prefer to have Mr. Hoover step aside as a candidate for renomination, why should not the party leaders select somebody else? The answer is that precedent is all against such a course.

"At the present moment, Mr. Hoover is not a popular leader. We state this as a fact, apart from any criticism of his record as Chief Executive."

There does not seem any probability that the expedient offered by Mrs. McCormick will be adopted, however, general may be the echo of the sentiment throughout the Republican party. The titular leaders of that organization have registered their thought that to deny their President a renomination would only be stepping from the frying pan into the fire. Such an action, they reason, would be a confession that their administration had failed, that the issues on which they must depend—such as the Hoover program or lack of program for lifting us out of the business depression, the Hoover farm relief measure which has cost the country a couple of hundred million dollars and left the farmers in worse shape than ever, an dthe sacred Smoot-Hawley tariff, which a Republican congress steam-rolled through and which Mr. Hoover signed—were all blunders. Moreover, with the Administration in control of the delegations to the convention, particularly from the South, they realize that only Mr. Hoover's voluntary action could deprive him of the candidacy and so far there is no indication that the President has even considered the possibility of such a decision.

Another conundrum involved in the project is: Where would the Republicans get a substitute? The first name mentioned by any of them is naturally Calvin Coolidge. But the Sage of Northampton has indicated very clearly that the candidacy in 1932 does not appeal to him at all. It is not surprising that a man who has been so successful in politics as the ex-President should not dare to risk spoiling a perfect record by subjecting it to the unpromising ordeal of trying to rehabilitate his party in the midst of a business panic and a plainly demonstrated revulsion against that party all over the country. Even those dreamers who think along Mrs. McCormick's lines realize that under no circumstances would Coolidge be a candidate before the convention against Hoover. The only possible chance would be the remote one that Hoover would be eliminated and that the convention would tender him the nomination by acclamation.

Such a sequence of events has never transpired in our political history, and it is no more likely this year than it was in 1912 when, as the Register-Republic editor phrases it: "Another Republican convention in Chicago hitched its precedent to a steamroller and forced the nomination of a man whom the majority of Republicans did not want to see nominated." And that gloomy editorial concludes:

"The people vetoed the action when they went to the polls in November of that year and gave the nominee of that convention the electoral votes of only two states—Utah and Vermont."

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

THE Constitutional guarantee, fundamental in the Democracy, of the freedom of individual opinion and its expression, whether in free speech or free press, meets another challenge in the refusal of a Kentucky court to allow the representative of the Knoxville News-Sentinel to attend a mine murder trial on the complaint that the newspaper had libelled and slandered the court in commenting on a previous case of somewhat like circumstances.

In arguing before the court of appeals a plea for a writ against this arbitrary order, Newton D. Baker declared that it was "an unwarranted deprivation of a property right" and by implication "imperilled a civil liberty of the people." And the second protest is of greater concern than the first.

If the Knoxville newspaper were "contemptuous and contumacious" in the prior instance, the court had its remedy, prescribed by the law, for dealing with the offense. But there is no authority in the law for otherwise denying the paper its common right, and holding it, and every other newspaper in the jurisdiction, by implication at least, in duress against any further utterance that might give offense to the bench.

Under ordinary circumstances, the press is not to contempt when it criticises a court. If circumstances or the form of manner of criticism shall be such as to constitute contempt, there is definite provision for punishment and the maintenance of the dignity and integrity of the judicial institution. But the Constitutional guarantees can not be erased whenever a judge becomes peeved or angered by criticism of his action.

ALL OF US
By Marshall Maslin

"WHO ARE YOU?"
YOU CAN'T ANSWER
BECAUSE YOU ARE ALWAYS CHANGING

SOMEBODY asks: "Who are you?"

It's not an easy question to answer. It's true that you can give your name and your address and your telephone number and your age and your sex and your occupation, but do these statistics explain just who you are?

Marshall Maslin

You are a pendulum that swings back and forth from joy to grief, from peace to pain, from energy to boredom, from wisdom to ignorance, and from hope to despair. I ask you, "Who are you?" and you might wisely answer, "When do you mean? I have many emotions, many dispositions, many moods. I think various thoughts at various times. I am always changing."

Sometimes you think: Money is the most important thing in the world. It sets us free to travel, to live comfortably, to be our real selves. There is no real freedom without money.

But you see a rich man who is most unhappy and you think: Money isn't important. It does not bring happiness. It does more harm than good. The less money the better for humanity.

Lazily you think: Work is a curse. I wish I didn't have to toil. I wish I lived in the South Seas, where the breadfruit falls into your hands and the cocoanuts break as they fall, and the fish swim right into your hands and ask to be fried.

Gathering energy, you reflect: Work is a man's salvation. The man who has no work is a lost soul. There is no happiness without work. Pity the poor creature who has nothing to do.

Bitter, you reflect on hdmanity: Men are selfish, women are vain. Nobody cares what happens to you. When you're young, you are foolish. When you are old, you are dull. Trust nobody.

Wiser, you think. People are good. At the heart of every man is sweetness and strength. Men and women are all trying to be better, to be kinder and to be wiser. If we had more understanding in us, we would reverence our fellows more.

When you are dull or bitter or despairing, you are one person. When you are interested, friendly and hopeful, you are somebody else. And one of you is a miserable failure and one is a fine success.

You know which one.

Backward Glances
By A. W. Neville

THE World Do Move—paraphrasing the Reverend Jasper's assertion of a half century ago that "De sun do move." The Reverend was a negro preacher of that time who gained quite a bit of notoriety by his declaration made from his pulpit in defending the biblical account of the battle at Gibeon when Joshua licked the Amorites and made the sun and moon stand still to give him time to finish the job in a workmanlike manner.

The moving to which I have reference is that of disease prevention rather than cure that is now beginning to be taken up under the campaigns for eradication of flies and mosquitoes because of their disease carrying and communicating character. The schools are being used to teach the importance and necessity of this and presently we shall have better conditions over the country.

Good many years ago the idea of eradicating flies and mosquitoes would have been looked at askance by the average citizen. It was thought these pests were something provided by nature and must be borne as best might be. I recall when a fly trap was part of almost every household equipment, generally set on the dinner table except at actual meal time, and one summer the merchants, or many of them, had giant fly traps set on the sidewalks in front of their stores wherein were caught innumerable flies, the trap being emptied daily and the contents burned. There was no attempt to remove the source of propagation of the insects, and the only thing done was to kill as many as possible.

So with mosquitoes. Netting for the beds was first used, and later people began to put screens at the windows and doors to keep out both flies and mosquitoes, but despite this enough would slip in to cause discomfort and often illness. Now, even with the little we have done towards doing away with these pests, a fly trap would be a curiosity and a mosquito bar would fall to pieces on the merchant's shelves.

Paris made her beginning more than 25 years ago when the first Civic League under the leadership of Major F. H. Bailey petitioned the city council for a clean-up day that removed many of the feeding places for flies and mosquitoes and by continuance of this and other educational measures we are getting somewhere with the problem and proving the assertion that The World Do Move.

Poor Fish

The Aquarium is always good for half an hour's entertainment, if you have a simply inquisitive bent. That huge synoptic table setting forth the names of all the fish and their seasons for romance is worth a squint.

For example, visitors are informed that the female lobster hunts down the male in July and produces at least 10,000 eggs—but lobsters are not notably on the increase hereabout, because the life of a lobster egg is hazardous. And the equally absorbing information is on tap that the golden trout must await November and a temperature of exactly 48 degrees to feel the mating urge.

Comparison.

The gaudiness of the movie cathedrals seems to have reached its high water mark, because no more super-salons are currently building. The auditoriums, which will be constructed for Radio City will be, I am informed, no more dizzily daring in decoration than some already up.

But every time I enter the Paramount I am reminded of Paul Morand's remark that the place is a blend of St. Peter's in Rome, the Parthenon and the Valley of Kings. Not so complimentary was H. L. Menken's comment on one of the most breath-taking of the movie mausoleums: "It reminds me of a gold-toothed darky with his mouth open."

Question

I had myself poked and measured and charted the other day for a new insurance policy. There were two examining medicos. One asked:

"Do you smoke?"

"Yes."

"How much?"

Bored by the proceedings and to see what would happen, I replied, exaggeratedly: "Oh, four or five packs a day."

"I don't use tobacco myself," said the doctor, "but I should think you could get along on three packs a day."

The other one laughed, lighted a weed and went on with the questioning.

Comments From Contemporaries

MARSHALL NEWS.

Since England went off the gold standard unemployment has decreased 22 per cent. The reason given for this is that English manufacturers are enabled to meet world competition because the depreciated pound sterling means a reduction in the wages paid in industry. During that same period unemployment in France has increased 300,000. We do not know whether this is an argument in favor of this country abandoning the gold standard or not. But we do believe we must in some way get the 23 nations back on the gold standard that have been compelled to abandon it, or we must in some way arrange our finances so we can do business with these countries without penalizing them by making them pay us more for our goods than other countries charge them. This idea may seem very foolish to those who understand finance, but we believe it's common sense. If there isn't enough gold in the world to meet the demands of the trade, then it follows as the night the day that some other medium of exchange must be set up.

MEXIA NEWS.

After several deaths of children from diphtheria the efforts of the public health authorities in this vicinity is being redoubled, and toxoid campaigns are going on in a number of communities. Through schools and other agencies the public health committees are working in an effort to get every child immunized from the dread child disease.

Communities in some instances are employing doctors for a lump sum and paying for the toxoid as a community. In some cases the doctor volunteers his services. An effort is being made to get more state assistance in purchase of the serum but thus far only a reduced price has been obtained.

Any child under 10 years of age and more than six months old should have the toxoid, physicians declare, and parents are urged to take their children to their doctor as soon as possible for the treatment. Some cases of diphtheria among adults have been noted.

Washington Daily Letter
By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — Chairman Frederick Hale of the senate committee on naval affairs recently blurted out the real reason why so few folks, except incurable optimists, expect any genuine reduction in sea establishments to follow the international armament conference for which America's delegates are just leaving (Jan. 20), bound Geneva-ward.

The party, if anyone needs reminding, consists of:

Republicans—Ex-Vice President Charles G. Dawes, retiring United States ambassador to England; Hugh S. Gibson, United States ambassador to Belgium; President Mary Emma Woolley of Mount Holyoke college.

Democrats—Senator Claude A. Swanson of Virginia; Norman H. Davis, New York banker, who, as undersecretary of state toward the end of the Wilson regime, gave the war president much of his advice at Versailles, who subsequently participated prominently in post-war European financial readjustments, and consequently is entitled to his share of the credit for present conditions; who somehow missed being connected with the Hoover food administration, but was educated at Stanford anyway.

And about 30 assorted factorums—experts, secretaries, etc.

As Senator Hale expressed it, Uncle Sam is in a position to negotiate advantageously, with a view to an all-around cutting down of armaments, only when his own fleet is the strongest one afloat.

It will be recalled that, due to his wartime activities, this was precisely the position in which Uncle Samuel found himself during the Washington conference of 1921-22, when he proposed to scrap several hundred million dollars' worth of his newly-built ships if the world's other leading naval powers would bind themselves to certain temporary limitations which, being then without funds to exceed them, they knew they would have to remain within, whether or no.

The readiness with which this offer was accepted was extremely gratifying to Uncle Sam.

Since then, however Uncle Sam having fallen even farther back from his former lead than he had intended (partly because of his wholesale destruction of American fighting vessels in 1921-22, partly because of his leisurely rate of subsequent new construction, partly because of the other powers' extensive new building programs), his rivals show no inclination to slow down to enable him to catch up, in turn.

Apparently it is only by outbuilding everyone else, and thus having an American navy to scrap, that he can retain control over the situation—an effective method, but rather expensive.

Senator Hale remarked as much and Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams (a witness before the naval affairs committee) agreed with him.

Diet and Health
By Logan Clendening, M. D., Author of "The Human Body"

The basic articles of diet for the younger children are also the staples for the child from five to seven. Milk, cereals, eggs green vegetables and fruits should predominate in the diet. Sweets and pastries and all starchy and vitaminless foods should be kept in the background.

Dr. Clendening

Meat may be added gradually and slowly to the diet. Meat is rather like sugar in that it spoils the appetite for other and more valuable foods. Nor is it as complete or economic a food as other things. Bread and milk contain more easily available calcium and other salts and vitamins. But some meat should be added to the growing child's diet. As we grow older, up to 50, meat becomes more and more a desirable element of the diet.

With scholing started and a regular schedule of work each working day, the dietary will have to conform to these necessities.

The time schedule is now the same as the adults—three meals a day. The general plan of the dietary may be the same, allowing the child to partake of what its elders eat. Milk, however, should still be a staple part of the child's diet. The period of infancy when the digestive tract was easily upset is over. Growth processes have been established and dietary errors are not so rapidly or certainly followed by retribution. A child started well in bone formation, blood formation and growth is half adult. But this does not mean that dietary rules can be broken with impunity. Wholesome food, well balanced as to starches, fats and proteins with fresh vegetables and fruits is still essential to health.

Looking to the economic side, a lunch should contain 800 calories. Such a lunch can be served by a school lunch service for 18 cents, thus: Split pea soup, 5 cents; veal stew with vegetables, bread and butter 10 cents; a glass of milk 3 cents.

Or: Lima beans (125 calories), 3 cents; chopped egg sandwiches, 4 cents; a glass of milk (140 calories) 3 cents; bread pudding with chocolate sauce (275 calories), 4 cents, and an apple (50 calories), 1 cent; 790 calories, 15c.

These are actual quotations from the lunch served at a New York high school where the pupils are taught to buy adequate lunches at low cost.

One important feature of feeding the older child is to cultivate a taste for a variety of foods. Habits are easy to form at this time, and if your child learns to like all kinds of food you are saving a lot of trouble for somebody in the future. Members of a family who "won't touch this or that" are the bane of the housewife's existence.

A good book, issued by the United States department of agriculture, is Farmer's Bulletin No. 717, "Food for Young Children."

Editor's Note: Four pamphlets and four articles by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each pamphlet and two cents in coin for each article, with a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The articles are "Normal Diet," "Diet of the Expectant Mother," "Tuberculosis" and "The Atonic Abdominal Wall."

TALKS WITH PARENTS
By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

By certain authorities it is maintained that two-thirds of blindness is preventable. In this country there are 14,000 children totally blind, shut out from the world of light, doomed to continuous darkness for a lifetime. (Suppose your child or mine were among them.) In addition 50,000 are partially blind. How many of these will entirely lose their sight will depend greatly on how intelligently they are treated and guided at home and at school.

Virtually all children of school age today have many times better light by which to read than did children of a hundred years ago; even far better than their parents had when they were children. Also school books are better for the eyes than then: the type is larger and more legible, the paper has less glare and the lighting of the schoolrooms is far better.

But the average child employs his eyes in reading much more now than then, and he reads a great deal of print today other than in school books, which is not very legible. He reads far more in his early school years.

With the better modern ways of teaching children to read at school, rapid reading skill is developed in most school children very early, and they deliberately are encouraged in the primary grades to read many books.

The brighter and more responsive children, and those less social, and less interested in out-of-door life, are lured to books. Some ambitious parents teach their children before the age of entering school, to read.

Poor little tots! Why should they have their sight so jeopardized and their tender, inco-ordinate nervous systems so heavily taxed by the strain which reading calls for in these early years?

The education of children would, no doubt, be farther advanced at 16 if the school were to teach no reading at all before the age of 7 or 8. Certainly few people then would be blind, fewer would be wearing glasses, fewer would be labeled "nervous." But the modern trend of education is for more tax on the eyes of little children, for more blindness.

What may we parents do about it? We can help protect the child's eyes by cultivating in him more out of door play interest and social pleasures. We can, moreover, lead him in good habits in regard to using his eyes. Many children read at home, lying on their stomachs on the floor with their heads cutting off the light from the printed page refrected from ceiling. Most children not vigilantly guided will often violate good reading hygiene habits.

Our biggest opportunity to protect the eyes of young children is to read to them as early as the second year and to keep on reading to them for hours and hours long past the time of their entering school. Even though they lag in the mechanics of reading during the first few school years, they will compensate many times for this loss through the increased ability to grasp meaning, and by their gain in breadth of information and good speech. Besides, there is cultivated a wholesome comradeship with the parent who reads to the child.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two pamphlets by Dr. Myers may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Garry C. Myers, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are "Punishments and Rewards" and "Fear."

PERSONAL ADVICE
By Virginia Lee

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Oh, Virginia Lee, you cannot imagine how unhappy I am! I don't think anything can be done for me, but if you publish this letter perhaps some other bride will be saved from my error.

"I had, as I know now, a very wonderful husband. He was kind and good to me, but he had to work on the shift from 4 p. m. to 12. This left me home alone every evening. Of course I was terribly lonely and when he introduced a friend of his I allowed him to call on me in the evenings.

"At first these meetings were open and above board. However, they became more and more clandestine. Finally the friend (?) convinced me that I should leave my husband and go away with him. It was some time before I yielded.

"There followed two months in which I was fairly happy. Then my lover deserted me. My husband won't have me back, although I have promised to be faithful always. I've learned my lesson and I've discovered I love my husband more than anything else in the world—too late.

"Virginia Lee, I feel as though there is nothing more in life for me, and I am seriously considering ending it all.

"You have helped so many people. Perhaps you can give me some solution to my seemingly hopeless problem.

"DESPONDENT."

Make up your mind on one thing, Despondent, that while things look pretty dark for you at present, they might be worse. Put the idea of suicide out of your mind. You have been a very foolish girl without any sense of responsibility toward the man you promised to love and cherish, but there is no need to go on being foolish.

You can go on from this point and build up your life. Keep yourself busy; that is the principal thing. If you don't have to work to support yourself, get interested in some activities that keep you busy. If you could work with the Red Cross or your associated charities you would see so many people worse off than yourself.

Satan usually "finds some work for idle hands to do." If you had filled your evenings with interests you would have been less likely to have succumbed to the young man's wiles. However, I realize how lonely a bride would be with her husband working until midnight every night, and there is no use going into that.

"It is perfectly natural for your husband to take the attitude he does. You would feel the same if he had been the one to leave you. You can only make up your mind that you HAVE learned your lesson and that you will do everything in your power to atone for the past by living a life beyond reproach.

Not knowing what manner of man your husband is, I cannot, of course, promise that he will take you back eventually. He must be deeply wounded and humiliated. But you can hope that he will, and if he doesn't, I know you will find there are many things worth while left for you and you must have faith that you will one day be happy again.

Be a sport now. Make up your mind that your present unhappiness is the just result of your own error, and that you will bear it with courage and win through. Good luck attend you!

Schmeling May Lose His Title Without Fight

CHICAGO, Jan. 20. (AP) — Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, faces the possibility of losing the title without throwing a glove.

This was indicated Wednesday night as the result of a poll made by The Associated Press of members of the National Boxing Association, who will vote on a proposal to vacate Schmeling's championship because of his failure to defend it or to sign to defend it within the six months time limit prescribed by the N.B.A.

General John V. Clinnin, president of the N.B.A., dispatched ballots to the membership and expects them to oust the German title holder.

"The rules are made by the membership of the N.B.A." General Clinnin said tonight, "and I expect them to be followed out to the letter. That, at least, has been the procedure before when the membership has been asked to vote on questions of vacating a champion's title."

General Clinnin said the complete balloting would not be available until probably the middle of February, as the votes must come from 29 states, several boxing commissions in Canada, from Cuba, Porto Rico and Mexico and from affiliations abroad.

3 Insect - Preying Myriapods Become Bottle Prisoners

Three predatory myriapods, hundred-legged monsters that prey on the insect kingdom in the dead of night, Wednesday were brought to the office of the News by Mrs. T. H. Osborne of Broadway. The centipedes were found by Bob Mason while excavating a storm house at his home near Broadway.

The longest of the crawlers was estimated at eight inches in length—however, no one dared apply a ruler to corroborate the measurement. They were imprisoned in a well-corked bottle.

Although the anterior legs of the centipedes are poison fangs the bites are painful but not serious.

Sports Experts Says Golf Requires Most Skill As Well As Involving Luck

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Jan. 20. (AP)—Even though this may serve only to intensify the points of argument among the country's sport experts, the fact is they have voted golf as the sport requiring the most skill as well as involving the most luck. Baseball is next on each count.

In this respect the Associated Press athletic poll reveals a house sharply divided against itself. Otherwise there is substantial agreement that rowing requires the most strength or stamina and that football calls for the most strategy.

Only three sports, football, basketball and boxing are voted for each of the four major factors considered.

Here are the results of the national poll showing the first five sports in each category, the number of votes for each, also the approximate per cent of the element involved, as figured by those who gave detailed answers:

1. Sport requiring most skill:
   Golf, 24 votes (80 per cent).
   Baseball, 19 votes (70 per cent)
   Tennis 17 votes (68 per cent)
   Billiards 10 votes (83 per cent)
   Boxing 8 votes (60 per cent)
2. Sport requiring most strength or stamina:
   Rowing 27 votes (76 per cent).
   Wrestling 18 votes (63 per cent)
   Boxing 14 votes (45 per cent).
   Football 12 votes (40 per cent).
   Basketball 4 votes (50 per cent)
   Marathon and distance running 4 votes (82 per cent).
3. Sport requiring most strategy:
   Football 57 votes (44 per cent)
   Baseball 14 votes (36 per cent)
   Boxing 4 votes (25 per cent)
   Tennis 4 votes (45 per cent).
   Chess 2 votes (100 per cent).
4. Sport involving the most luck:
   Golf 34 votes (30 per cent)
   Baseball 15 votes (40 per cent).
   Horse racing 12 votes (80 per cent).
   Football 7 votes (30 per cent).
   Basketball 7 votes (30 per cent)

CHAPTER 17

It was on the train to Detroit that Marcia made the acquaintance of Turner Gilmore. It was a hot, indolent day in July. Marcia was not particularly hungry, but she had gone to the diner for lunch because the porter had warned her as he hurried through the car, "Last call for lunch in de din' cah, ahaid!" and because she knew that it would be late when she arrived in Detroit.

The diner was filled with people, languidly awaiting their chilled salads and iced drinks, while the waiters dashed up and down the aisle with perspiring faces. The captain greeted her, and looked doubtfully through the car. Then his face brightened, and he beckoned her to follow. There was one vacancy at the table for two in the far end of the car. He drew out the chair and held it while Marcia slipped into its cool leather-cushioned seat, and unctiously provided her with menu, pencil and order blank.

A man sat across the table, obviously awaiting his order. There was nothing unusual in that fact, for Marcia had shared tables with strange men in crowded diners before this. But she was conscious of his keen scrutiny while she inspected the menu. A casual glance as she seated herself, had revealed to her a man of striking appearance. The glance had registered that he was handsome, but perhaps he was not. More likely, he had only appeared to be. At any rate, she felt the dominating influence of a strong personality in his presence. She knew that he was looking at her. Avoiding his gaze, she turned and looked out of the window, as if pondering her choice for lunch. Actually she was striving for composure. Never had she felt so self-conscious in a strange presence. When she tried to write, her hand trembled, and she was grateful that the motion of the train might account for it. Chicken salad, rolls, and iced coffee, she decided. The waiter pounced upon her order as soon as she laid down the pencil. It was extremely annoying when passengers were waiting in the vestibule, and those already placed were so slow about making their orders. His starched white coat and apron rustled with crisp annoyance, as he rearranged her silver, refilled her tumbler from the water bottle on the table, and hurried toward the kitchen.

Marcia raised the tumbler of ice water to her lips. Her glance met the sharp gray eyes of the man who was watching her. They were keen, but not hard. They held a suggestion of a smile, but Marcia did not look to see if his lips smiled, too. She set down the water tumbler, and again watched the swiftly passing world outside the window. In the second glance, she had noted heavy, well-brushed hair that was gray at the temples, which gave the man a distinguished appearance. His hand that rested on the table in her line of vision from the window, was large and well-kept, and the soft, white cuff of his shirt protruded slightly from his coat sleeve, quite properly.

The waiter returned in rustling haste, and began to serve her, again moving every article on the table with swift experienced movements. She looked up with surprise at the quick service, as he set before her a grilled club steak. It was not her order.

"But, this is not my order," she objected.

"Mine, I believe," the man across the table suggested, and she was compelled to meet his smile of apology. The waiter begged her pardon, and transferred the order to him, moving his implements over the table as if he were playing a rapid game of checkers. The steak was moved across the table with a flourish significant of crowning a king.

A smile hovered about the man's lips, and he met Marcia's eyes again, in amusement. She answered his smile amiably.

"Sorry to take it away from you," he remarked pleasantly. "But no doubt you prefer to have your own order."

"Oh yes, I shouldn't care for all that lunch today," she replied, as the waiter added potatoes, a combination salad, fritters and hot coffee.

"The heat never affects my appetite," he laughed. "As a matter of fact, warm food is more refreshing than cold on days like this, and more healthful."

"Is it?" Marcia was indifferent to his suggestion.

He did not offer to begin eating, and asked, when she glanced at him curiously, "May I wait until you are served and join you? Allow me."

"Oh, please don't. Your steak will get cold," she reminded him, then added, "and would not be so refreshing and healthful." Her eyes twinkled with unconscious humor.

He laughed, amused, and turned to their waiter, who was passing. "Waiter, may we have the lady's order at once?"

"Why not? He can bring your salad and rolls now as well as later. No need to keep you waiting longer. That's just a schedule they go through."

"How did you know what I ordered?"

"I watched you write it," candidly. "Incidentally, I was looking at your hands. Did you know that they are extraordinarily beautiful? So are you."

He certainly was presuming, she thought.

"Perhaps, but I can't help that, can I?" her voice held a touch of resentment at his personal interest.

"No reason why you should. You are most fortunate, I should say. One reason why I spoke to you was to hear your voice. It matches you. You are complete."

"Really?"

"Really!"

Her lunch arrived with ostentatious service. The waiter's interest had gained a point or two. A distinguished gentleman interested in a beautiful woman at lunch might result in a generous tip.

"Was the order quite right? How many lumps of sugar in her coffee? Do you wish cream? Were the rolls just as she preferred them?" A final flourish of the water jug.

Her companion attacked his steak. "Gilmore is my name," he suggested, "may I have the pleasure, Miss—?"

"Moyer," she supplied, briefly.

"Delighted, Miss Moyer. Going to Detroit?"

"Yes, I am."

"Live there?"

"Oh, no."

"Ever been there before?"

"No."

"Business or pleasure?"

"Is this an income tax questionnaire, or just a passport blank?" she inquired.

He laughed pleasantly. "Oh, I beg your pardon, Miss Moyer. You see, that happens to be my business—asking questions of people. It gets to be a habit."

"Do they always answer you?"

"They have to," he shrugged slightly, and turned back the lapel of his coat to expose an official badge.

"Oh," she said, "and am I under suspicion?"

"Scarcely that! You appear to be quite harmless and law abiding. But frankly, I am curious. I noticed you this morning, and me deductions are that you are not just a casual traveler going to visit your grandmother, or your second cousin in Detroit."

"You're a good detective; I am not," she conceded. "I am just a demonstrator of cosmetics, taking beauty to those of the world who desire it."

"You are convincing, surely. I can't even hold you for misrepresentation. Well, that is interesting. Tell me about it. I haven't met one in your profession before."

"There isn't much to tell. Your work is much more interesting. What clue are you following to Detroit? Rum runners?"

"Worse than that in some respects. It's a baffling case. I'd like to tell you about it, but of course, I can't."

It was a pleasant and interesting half hour, Marcia had to admit. When they had finished with and ice, he insisted upon paying her check, to which Marcia consented reluctantly. It was too small an item to argue about. And the waiter had surmised correctly. Special service was not always so prudently placed, and amply rewarded.

The diner was, as usual, as far removed as possible from the one which they both occupied, so it developed. There was a protracted journey of narrow vestibules, congested aisles, lurching platforms and opening doors. At her section, he took a card from his pocket and smiled, "At your service, Miss Moyer. And may I talk with you again, please?"

New York Stocks.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20, (AP)—After vainly waiting for something to turn up, the stock market took the bit in its teeth during the last hour Wednesday and helped itself to a fairly active rally.

The late move followed an interval of extreme dullness which, in turn, had succeeded an early, temporary advance of 1 to 3 points These gains, mostly made at the opening, were gradually dissipated, but the market's inertness while the decline was in progress discouraged sellers and helped pave the way for a flourish of short covering. Resumption of the rise in wheat and strength of some foreign bonds were factors influencing the turn. Transactions totaled 1,176,415 shares, nearly 50 per cent of the total trading occurring in the final hour and a half.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20, (AP)—After selling off during the earlier trading cotton steadied in the last hour on trade buying and covering promoted by the late firmness in grain and stock.

March contracts after easing off to 6.62 or 12 points net lower, rallied to 6.70 and closed at 6.67, with the general market closing steady at net losses of 4 to 7 points.

January sold up to 6.61 and July to 7.03 or about 8 to 9 points from the low levels of the day, but closing prices were slightly off from the best.

A good part of the day's selling was attributed to liquidation through houses with Wall street or Western connections, while the bulk of the buying on the decline was believed to be for trade account.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 20, (AP)—Cotton after ruling quiet and lower all morning rallied in the afternoon owing to a sustained advance in stocks, closing the day with net declines of only 2 to 4 points.

The market opened easier as Liverpool cables were 8 to 9 penny points worse than due. Private cables stated that there was hedge selling and local and continental liquidation. Manchester cables said that there were moderate cloth sales to India.

The market became quite active in the late trading and price advances sharply owing to continued strength of stocks. Active months advanced 10 to 11 points from the lows to the new highs for the day at 6.70 for March, 6.86 for May and 7.02 for July and closed at or near the top. March closing 4 points net lower for the day and May and July 3 points net lower.

Chicago Grain.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20, (AP)—In a sudden outburst of buying wheat prices made a lightning-like advance at the close Wednesday.

Quick changes of front on the part of speculative traders appeared to be chiefly responsible for the day's net gain in wheat values. Earlier, the market had been oppressed by reports of heavy chartering of vessels to carry grain from Russia and Argentina.

Wheat closed nervous at the day's top level, 3-8 to 1 above Tuesday's finish, corn 1-8 to 1-2, oats unchanged to 1-4 off, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2 cents.

Closing indemnities, wheat, May 59 3-8 to 1-2, 61 7-8 to 62; July 58 3-4 to 7-8, 61 1-8 to 1-4; Sept. 60 1-8, 62 5-8.

Corn, May 41 3-8 to 1-2, 42 3-8 to 1-2; July 42 3-4, 44 1-8.

FORT WORTH, Jan. 20, (AP)—Hogs, 500; truck hogs steady to 10 higher; no rail hogs offered; truck top 4.40; bulk better grades 165 to 260 lb. truck hogs 4.30 to 4.40; few around 300 lb. butchers at 4.00; packing sows 3.50 to 3.75 or steady.

Cattle, 3,100, inculding 600 calves; slaughter steers and yearlings slow to about 25 lower; slaughter steers mostly plain grades listed around 3.50 to 4.50; butcher heifers around 4.00 down; general trade other classes cattle and calves about steady; strong demand for weighty bulls, small lots good heavies up to 3.25; few fat cows 3.00 to 3.25; butcher grades around 2.75; some mixed stock calves 4.75 and fairly good stock calves 5.00; light weight stock steers 4.50; heavy calves on packer account 5.00 down; few good heavies up to 5.25.
